

Victim of Explosion Dead End Came Last Evening

At Six o'Clock, when Florence Hastings, the Young Girl Who Was So Frightfully Burned in Yesterday Morning's Fire, Breathes Her Last--Body was Practically One Solid Burn.

Endured Uncomplainingly the Most Intense Suffering--Death Comes as a Welcome Relief from Injuries Which Would Have Left Her a Cripple and Disfigured for Life.

PARENTS ARE HEARTBROKEN

At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hastings at No. 1019 East Rawlings street, yesterday evening at 6 o'clock, Florence Hastings, the young girl who was so frightfully burned in the gasoline explosion and fire on Thursday morning, breathed her last.

Surrounded by her father and mother and two sisters and one brother the end came peacefully to the suffering girl. Dr. Roy E. Brown was at the bedside administering as best he could to alleviate the sufferings, when the end came.

Florence Hastings was born in Cincinnati nearly 17 years and five months ago, and has always, since she has been old enough, done what she could to help bear the burden of supporting herself and the family.

The father is a hard-working, conscientious man of middle age, who has had no end of ill luck. Born in Kentucky, he 22 years ago removed to this state, and of late years has engaged mostly in the work of contracting all kinds of cement work. He has worked at his trade in Cincinnati, Dayton and Eaton, and has an excellent reputation as an efficient and reliable workman. Nineteen years ago he lost the sight of his right eye, as a result of being struck by a hot cinder while he was a passenger on the C. & O. railroad. A few years later he lost three fingers of his left hand while at work in a saw mill.

Florence was the oldest of four children and was a great help and a great source of happiness to her parents and her loss at this time is a particularly hard blow to them.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Grace M. E. church, after which the remains will be interred in Washington cemetery.

Mr. Hastings says that he was at his daughter's side very soon after the terrible accident, which cost her her life occurred, and that he tried to get a statement from her. He says his daughter was perfectly conscious up until the time she fell asleep, as a result of the quieting medicine administered by the physicians.

Before she was taken home at 11:30 o'clock, she was in a sound sleep and never woke up until within a few minutes before her spirit took flight from the pain-racked body at 6 o'clock.

It was before the quieting medicine was administered that the father asked her:

"Florence, how did it happen?" This question she was unable to answer coherently because of the physical suffering she was undergoing.

From disjointed and fragmentary sentences the father says that it is his opinion that she had filled the stove and gone into the Crome stable for water, and returning lit the stove and dropped the lighted match in the can of gasoline, which she had left setting in the center of the kitchen floor. As soon as the match struck the gasoline the explosion occurred.

In answer to his question as to whether she had tried to fill the stove while the stove was lighted she gave a positive "No". About this the father says there can be no doubt.

The actual detail facts will never be known because the fire and confusion which followed so disarranged the room that no satisfactory explanation can be arrived at from the position of articles in the room.

The poor girl was one solid burn from head to foot with the exception of one place about the size of a silver dollar on her right cheek.

Her sufferings were terrible and her death in view of her terrible injuries was a welcome liberation from the most fearful torture.

She carried a $212 policy of life insurance in the Prudential Life Insurance Company which has not yet, of course, owing to the very short time since her death, been adjusted.

The deepest sympathy goes out to the stricken family and the hope that brighter days are near at hand is everywhere expressed.

Box Cars Burned On Siding

Four box cars in the siding on the N. & W. C. H. & D. transfer track below Renick's curve near Chillicothe, were destroyed by a fire which broke out about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. Two of the cars were loaded with hay while the other two were empty. One other car caught fire but was saved by the prompt action of C. H. & D. employees in securing water from the tank of an engine near by. It is believed that the fire was started by tramps who probably slept in the car where the flames originated. A lighted match carelessly thrown down was probably responsible. The loss, while it has not yet been estimated, will probably aggregate more than $1000.

Modern Woodmen Drill Big Thing

Bugle Team and Many Notables Come from Columbus---Efficiency of Organization in Drill Work a Surprise to All who Witnessed It.

Last night witnessed a notable demonstration in the organization of Fayette camp of Modern Woodmen.

It was probably the biggest affair of the kind which has been pulled off by the local order, a branch of the Modern Woodmen of America, one of the largest fraternal organizations in the United States.

The meeting was for the purpose of adopting candidates into Fayette camp, sixteen out of the 27 recent accessions, being adopted. In connection with the meeting were introduced features quite out of the ordinary.

The securing of the Modern Woodmen Bugle and Drill team from the Columbus Barracks to give an exhibition drill was the event of special public interest.

This team has taken prizes at state and national meetings, and execute the military maneuvers put on at the National Triennial meetings of the Modern Woodmen of America.

The team is made up of Modern Woodmen, who belong to the United States army.

The team came down on the 6:25 B. & O. and marched up town to their stirring military music. A large crowd witnessed their exhibition drill given at the corner of Fayette and Court street. Their maneuvers were intricate and splendidly put through. The military bearing of the Woodmen with the gleam of the ax instead of a weapon and their perfect execution, commanding great applause from those who were onlookers.

The team marched to the Woodmen's headquarters, accompanied by a delegation of 225-30 from Columbus, including the officers of Ohio Camp, Columbus, and large turn outs from Mt. Sterling, Chillicothe, Frankfort, Bloomington, Good Hope and the surrounding country.

Upon arrival at the hall, Consul of Camp Glen Fine welcomed the guests to Fayette camp with heartsome greetings.

The work was then put on by Ohio Camp, of Columbus, and finely done.

After the adoption ceremonies there were eloquent addresses. E. B. Thomas, of the Board of National Auditors, was the chief speaker, followed by N. C. Sherbourne, State Deputy of Ohio, G. H. Hunsicker, of Williamsport, National Committee on New Territory; Past Consul Brall and District Deputy M. M. Reading, of Columbus.

The evening wound up in a social and fraternal hour, Smith Brothers serving elegant refreshments.

The team and officers returned to Columbus on the 10:35 train.

Next Tuesday night the other 15 candidates will be taken through the adoption ceremonies.

Careful of His Gun.

In one of the small mountain towns of Kentucky lived Dan, a half wit, with whom the boys often went hunting. On one of these trips Dan and the young man with him were between two hills when a rabbit jumped up in front of them and ran up the hill to Dan's right. The other fellow, being on Dan's left, did not wish to take the chance of shooting at the rabbit for fear of an accident, so he said: "There he goes, Dan! Shoot him, shoot him!" But Dan simply stood still and watched the rabbit disappear over the hill, and his partner wanted to know why he didn't shoot. After a moment's silence he answered, talking through his nose: "Did you take me for a fool? Do you think I was going to strain my gun shooting uphill?"—Judge.

HOTEL BILL JUMPER NABBED IN THIS CITY

Today by Chief Devaney---Was Stopping at the Imperial, and Was Wanted at Columbus on Complaint of the Neil House---Believed to be Badly Wanted Elsewhere---Mail Indicates Home is in Cleveland.

Chief Devaney made an important capture here this morning when he placed under arrest and held for Columbus officers a tall, fine looking man, who was registered at the Imperial hotel under the name of Augustus Demist. The chief obtained word that the man was wanted at Columbus for having jumped a board bill at the Neil House.

He claimed when placed under arrest to be a promoter, but talked very little.

The man was about 6 feet tall and weighed about 175 pounds and, despite the fact that he was not very well dressed, created a very favorable impression at the hotel with both the proprietors and the guests. He is about 27 years old.

An employee of the Neil House and two Columbus detectives came down from Columbus in an automobile and took him back this afternoon.

The Columbus detectives think he is an old offender at the game of beating hotels of board bills and that he is the man who is badly wanted in Cleveland and elsewhere on that charge. His mail was delivered to Chief Devaney this morning and included a registered letter from his mother with a money order inclosed. This money order the chief cashed and paid the two days' board bill due the Imperial and turned the rest over to the Columbus officers.

From the contents of his letters it seems that his home is in Cleveland and the one from his mother refers to some trouble he has been in and begs him to be good.

From these facts it would seem he is not wanted for beating Cleveland hotels. He created the impression with the officers of either being very unsophisticated or else a very smooth criminal.

Marvels of Motion.

Many trades sedentary in appearance are the cause of a vast amount of motion. The carpenter who drives his plane over the plank, the polisher who leaves it shining like a mirror, the gardener who sweeps the paths, the carpet layer who drives his nails—all these people move or cause movement in a part of their person. Add together all these rapid and apparently trivial movements and you will discover that they cover at least once in the course of a lifetime the long route around the earth. It has been calculated, and the calculation is easy to verify, that the writer with a fountain pen who blackens the paper for five hours a day at the rate of thirty words a minute will thus cover a distance of about 30,000 miles a year by, so to say, mere strength of the wrist. That means a much greater distance than that of the circuit of the earth. And yet this unconscious hero has scarcely quitted his desk.—Strand Magazine.

Today is the last discount day on gas and electric light bills.

USE OF THE FLAG.

National and State Laws in Reference to Advertising.

The following states have statutes which, among other things, make it a misdemeanor to sell, expose for sale or have in possession for sale any article of merchandise upon which shall have been printed or placed for purposes of advertisement a representation of the flag of the United States:

Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Nebraska, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

While over half of the states have enacted such statutes, congress appears to have established no regulations as to such use of the flag except that contained in the act of 1907, authorizing the registration of trademarks in commerce with foreign nations and among the states, "unless such mark consists of or comprises the flag or coat of arms or other insignia of the United States or any simulation thereof."—Case and Comment.

Allaying the Germ Scare.

American Medicine soothingly declares that many people are unnecessarily disturbed over the danger of infection from laundries, money and postage stamps. It says that "some one has been alarming us because he found a few bacteria on gummed postage stamps, though he should have been astonished if he had not found them." This medical authority adds that "common sense tells us not to put dirty money in the month, for it may have recently been tucked away in a very dirty place, yet its germs are mostly dead, and we can lay very little disease to its agency. Its evils are of another sort. Our clothing is boiled in the laundry and does not spread infection."

HIGH SCHOOL SITE MAY BE CHOSEN TONIGHT

Board of Education Will Meet for the Purpose of Taking Up that Troublesome Question, and Architect Howard Will Be Present With Reconstructed Plans for Building on Central Grounds.

Architect Howard, of Howard and Merriam, Columbus, arrived this afternoon at 3:30 from Columbus and immediately went into consultation with several members of the School Board.

The architect comes at the invitation of the Board, it is understood, to take up with them the matter of the location of a site for the new High school building.

When last here the architect was asked to make some changes in the preliminary drawings and plans, made some time ago, for a building on the Central school grounds.

These plans, it is understood he now has ready for submission and it is likely that the all troublesome site question will be taken up and discussed in earnest at tonight's meeting.

While the Board has considered several sites for the new High school building the subject of finally choosing one has never yet been taken up with a view to arriving at a conclusion.

Tonight the discussion will not be of that informal secondary nature and the whole matter will be gone over on a "brass tacks" basis which means business.

Whether the final conclusion will be reached at tonight's session and announcement made, cannot, of course, be known now.

It is needless to say that much interest attaches to the action of the Board and many citizens feel that the subject to be discussed tonight is by far the most momentous which the board has yet been called upon to grapple with.

Realizing from the start that the selection of a site for the new High school would be the cause of more interest than any other matter and that it was by far the most perplexing problem with which the board was confronted, a determination has been wisely postponed until conditions demanded action.

Every possible site has been considered and its merits and drawbacks weighed carefully and impartially by the board, so that whatever may be the result the people of Washington have the consolation that the action was not hasty and lightly considered.

The most careful attention and all the time possible, has been given to the consideration of the site problem.

SPEEDY RELIEF FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE.

"I had an acute attack of Bright's disease with inflammation of the kidneys and bladder, and dizziness," says Mrs. Cora Thorp, Jackson, Mich. WORK BEGINS ON HODSON HOSPITAL

An army of workmen have begun the remodeling of the Hodson Hospital and will push the work with all possible expedition to its completion.

The demands for the privileges of that part of the hospital already equipped have been so numerous that the urgency of additional accommodations is felt to be imperative.

There is considerable work to be done and while hoping to have the entire hospital ready for use by the first of the month, that is not a certainty.

Old State Dam To Go

The old State Dam in the Scioto river near Chillicothe is soon to be destroyed.

Much complaint has been made about the dam of late years, for the reason that it causes considerable damage by flood of the low lands in that vicinity during seasons of high water.

Some time ago the State Board of Public Works was appealed to and asked to destroy the middle section of the dam.

James Marker, chief engineer, has viewed the premises and given his consent, and the work of demolition will be done in the near future.

When asked if this meant the abandonment of the canal, Mr. Marker said: "Not necessarily, but that if the canal is to be rebuilt, a new dam would be necessary any way. Consequently it will do no harm at this time to blow out a portion of it.

THE REYNOLDS LAW.

One law passed by the present General Assembly which is entitled to special commendation is known as the Reynolds Non-partizan Judiciary Law.

This measure which passed both the House and the Senate and which was signed by the Governor subsequently to its passage, contains many wholesome features which distinguish it as a forward step in our system of government, the wholesome effects of which can scarcely be overestimated.

Under this law candidates who seek elevation to the judicial bench need pay scant, if any heed to party regularity or party organization. They appeal directly and alone to the people.

Instead of having their names printed on party tickets on the official ballot and thus obtaining the party support—the straight ticket vote—at the polls, candidates for judicial positions must have their names printed on ballots containing no party designation, thus compelling, in a measure, electors to disregard party lines and choose the man solely on account of their belief in his fitness.

If this law does not remove any unwholesome existing condition, but does establish and maintain the confidence of the people in the judiciary of the state, it has served a great purpose.

For some years, either with or without foundation in fact, and it matters not which, there has been steadily growing a belief among the people that the judiciary was not entirely free from political influences.

This feeling of dissatisfaction was a deplorable condition. Above all the people must have rock-ribbed confidence in the integrity of their courts.

Life, liberty and property rights are too sacred to be the pawns in a political chess game and the courts of our state are too sacred to rest under the ban of suspicion.

Lift the Judiciary from the level of politics and place it on a plane where it will not only be absolutely pure but above suspicion of evil.

The Reynolds law tends very strongly to better conditions and it is to be hoped sincerely that in Ohio we will have no occasion, after this law is once in full operation, to wish the judiciary was out of politics.

The Judiciary must not only be out of politics. Its members should be selected in such a manner that the people cannot suspicion that it is in politics.

Under the old system this suspicion had grown to such proportions that it was regarded as fact and political agitators anxious to further their own ends, made use of it to fan the flame of distrust with existing conditions, which was not extinguished when the dominant party candidate was defeated.

Another good which should flow from the Reynolds law is that there will be much less likelihood of members of the bar who would hardly be qualified to act as judge of elections, being swept into office on a political tidal wave, simply on account of a political upheaval which carries judges along in its wake.

In Ohio there are now many "rain check" judges in office by reason of political revolution, whose incompetency does not, to say the least of it, tend to quiet dissatisfaction with the conditions which have long surrounded the selection of candidates for the high office of judge.

The Reynolds law "listens good" and the people of Ohio will now have the opportunity of seeing how it works in actual operation.

There are still people who do not read newspapers. Some of them held a family reunion in Sullivan county, N. Y., at which wood alcohol was served as a beverage. They were lucky enough to get off with four funerals.

Ambassador Bryce will have to hire a clerk to keep track of his honorary degrees. For about the steenth time he's been made a doctor of laws—Johns Hopkins University was the guilty party this time.

Again on the trail of the beef trust. This time it's a New York Federal grand jury that is doing the trailing. Maybe they'll get that bunch-cooped some day.

Sporting politicians in Washington are laying odds that "Joe" Cannon will be guilty of insubordination within a month after the next house meets.

Members of the House not wishing old extra session to shake his gory looks at them, put on the high speed clutch and passed three appropriation bills, carrying about $140,000,000 in one day. How about the "jokers" in 'em?

The weather isn't the only thing that will be hot in Texas in July, the 22d, having been set as the day for the voters to decide whether the state shall be "wet" or "dry".

As President Taft hasn't been charged with having had the ultimate annexation of Japan in view when he approved that new treaty, it seems pertinent to ask, who's asleep on the job now?

Gee, Boss Cox, of Cincinnati, must have walked under a ladder. He's having a combination wrastle with an indictment for perjury and a charge of contempt of court.

POETRY FOR TODAY

THE LITTLE BOY AND HIS DREAM.

The little boy smiled in his sleep that night,
As he wandered to Twilight Town;
And his face lit up with a heavenly light
Through the shadows that drifted down;
But he woke next morning with tear-stained eye
In the light of the gray dawn's gleam,
And out from the stillness we heard him cry,
"I've lost my dream—my dream."

And he told us then in his childish way,
Of the wonderful dream he'd known;
He had wandered away from the land of play
To the distant land of the Grown;
He had won his share of the fame and light
In the struggle and toil of men;
And he sobbed and sighed in the breaking light,
"I want my dream again!"

As the years passed by the Little Boy grew
Till he came to the Land of the Grown;
And the dream of his early youth came true,
The dream that he thought had flown;
Yet once again he smiled in his sleep—
Smiled on till the gray dawn's gleam,
When those near by might have heard him weep,
"I want my dream—my dream!"

For he dreamed of the Yesterdays of Youth.

And we smile on a mother's face;
A hearth of old-time faith and truth
In the light of an old home place;
He had won his share of the fame and light

In the struggle and toil of men—
Yet he sobbed and sighed in the breaking light,
"I want my dream again!"
—Grantland Rice of The Nashville Tennessean in The Columbian.

"Humph!" replied the aggressive man.

"I do love the watermelon. I remember that on one occasion last summer—"

"Oh, yes; you bought a watermelon. So did I."

"I was passing by a grocery."

"So was I."

"I saw this melon."

"Yes, and I saw one."

"I stopped and looked on it."

"I was the same kind of a fool!"

"Yes, I stopped and looked."

"And the sound told me that I had found a juicy red core."

"Same here."

"And I bought it."

"So did I. Yes, I bought it, and broke my back lugging it home."

"I put mine on the ice for two days," said the mild-mannered man.

"Some there. Bought fifty pounds extra."

"At the end of two days I invited ten people in to help me devour that prize."

"I invited eleven."

"And the melon was out."

"And so was mine, and it was greener than grass and harder than sandstone—ha! ha! ha! What fools we made of ourselves!"

"But mine was ripe, sir. It was red. It was juicy. It was a feast fit for angels. It was the largest, finest, nicest, most beautiful, most exhilarating—most!"

But the aggressive man had closed his eyes and pretended sleep.

ASSAULT CASE TRIAL STILL ON IN COURT

Morning Session Occupied by the Court in Hearing Arguments on Special Charges Asked---Jury Dismissed Until Afternoon Session---End in Sight.

The trial of the case of Ohio vs. McCoy, Pavey and Rowe, under indictment for assault and battery, has dragged out longer than either the court or the attorneys engaged had anticipated.

The introduction of the evidence on behalf of the defendants occupied a longer time than it was thought it would, and the introduction of the state's rebuttal evidence was only concluded Friday morning.

As soon as the taking of evidence was concluded, the matter of special charges to the jury, asked for by both the prosecution, were taken up and argued by counsel at length, the jury being dismissed until the afternoon session at one o'clock, at which time they were ordered to report and hear the arguments.

The case has attracted more than usual attention, both on account of the prominence of the indicted parties and the fact that the trial of three defendants at one time, is an unusual occurrence in the courts of this county.

The fact also that a father accuses his son of a criminal offense adds interest to the case.

Every inch of ground is being contested both in the evidence and on points of law by the attorneys engaged. Mr. Pope Gregg and John Logan for the state and J. D. Post for the defendants.

points and impressed the desirability of the right selection. A draft horse must have weight as well as muscle, and should be broad, deep, compact and massive.

This afternoon fat hogs are being judged.

Mr. Darst's talk on alfalfa was listened to with great interest, the raising of this crop, comparatively new in Ohio. The speaker took up the procedure, raising and value of alfalfa and the requirements necessary to get a good stand.

One of the O. S. U. professors, who has traveled extensively through the west, makes the assertion that Ohio has produced a growth of alfalfa equal to any state in the Union.

Mr. Welton gave an excellent address on the uses of fertilizers and their re-inforcement. This afternoon he took up the question of lime in connection with soil fertility.

The instructors in the Home-makers' course, gave a number of invaluable ideas for the decoration and beautifying of the home.

ROSS COUNTY TREASURY BENEFITS IN STRANGE WAY

A Five-dollar Legacy, which Heir Refused to Accept, is Turned into Treasury Under Order of Court---Very Peculiar Case Brought to Light when Estate is Settled.

Albert and Jacob Schreiner who are the executors of the estate of the late Frederick Schreiner, deceased, who died about two years ago, filed an application in Probate court on Tuesday to be permitted to deposit $5 in the general fund of the county in order that they might settle up the estate. The law provides for this procedure whenever the money can't be distributed, but in this case it is rather unusual.

By the terms of his will, Mr. Schreiner left $5 to his son Frederick Schreiner, Jr., but the last named refused to accept the same, consequently the executors had the sum on hand. By his refusal to accept the money the county becomes $5 richer. The case is a very unusual one, for seldom is a county benefitted unless it is on account of missing heirs.

Some time ago similar steps were taken to close up an estate, but this money was soon claimed by heirs of the missing heirs, and by order of the court, the money was paid out again.

BURNING COAL.

To Get the Most Heat Imitate the Locomotive Engineer.

The writer has tried most of the schemes to keep coal from burning. Experience has convinced him that the only way to get out of coal the heat units that are in it is to burn it. It's cold coal when you keep them in.

An old engineer showed the writer more about burning coal to get the most possible heat out of it than ever was dreamed of by those who think up schemes not to burn it. His rule was burn it, but don't burn it without getting heat. The dead coal two feet deep on the live coals in the bottom of the furnace and for two hours, while the flame is burning through, your furnace is a refrigerator and your house a cold storage plant. Then, when the flame has eaten its way through to enable the mass to send up some heat, most of your coal is gone and the heat it contained has flown up in gas and smoke through the chimney. The family is frozen stiff.

A locomotive fireman watches his live coals with a jealous eye. When he sees the fiery red of them in any spot turning grayish he showers that spot lightly with coal; the coals there and all around it burn the fresh shovelfuls into instant flame and then these coals—all heat. Never does he smother his grate bars and live coals with a thick blanket of dead coal. If he did the locomotive would stop making steam and the train would stand still. Keep your furnace fire going by burning coal, but burning it as it is burned in the locomotive, a little at a time, where it is needed to continue the constant supply of live, red, heat giving coals.—New York Press.

KISSING UNDER RAILROAD BAN IS TRAFFIC BAR

While Couple Is Planting
Good Bys, Choo-
Choo Goes.

Omaha, Nebraska. — "Kissing at this gate is positively prohibited." Painted in black, on a white ground, and in letters large enough to be read while you run, the foregoing notice has been posted at each of the passenger gates at the Union and Burlington railroad stations in this city. The notices have been posted on instructions from the respective depot masters and are sanctioned by all of the railroad managers.

The anti-kissing order was caused by Charles Falk, a young man of Hastings, Neb. Mr. Falk had been in the city a number of days and on departing for home was accompanied to the Burlington station by a bevy of young society girls of Omaha. The Burlington train rolled in from the east and the passengers hurried out of the depot.

At one gate, the one which was the cause of the new order, travelers were confronted by Falk and his girl friends. He first insisted upon imprinting a lingering kiss squarely upon the lips of one Omaha maiden. This being done, a second stepped up for a parting kiss and then a third and finally a fourth.

Before the fourth kiss was planted, the train had gone and an angry crowd of a dozen or more persons who had been left were discoursing on the foolishness of kissing.

The next morning the no-kissing order went into effect at the Burlington station, and a day later it appeared at the Union station. A depot official said:

"We have no objection to kissing but if the kissing is going to interfere with the transaction of business, it must be stopped. We have had complaints before and by investigating have found that more persons miss their trains by reason of kissing than from any other one cause. It's perfectly right to kiss in the station, or on the street, but it will not be longer permitted at the passenger gates of the station, thus blocking traffic and preventing persons from making their trains."

In New Colors.

Choosing the materials for her spring suit is always a difficult matter with the average woman. In her delight over the end of winter, and the putting aside of its somber garments, she is apt to run to the other extreme and indulge in some light and gay plaid effect that she is soon tired of, and which shows every spot and speck of dust.

Nothing is more serviceable than serge, however, and, according to prominent tailors, it will be first in favor this spring, although lightweight broadcloths will lead for elaborate afternoon costumes.

New striped and flannel plaids are being made in serges this year, while new colors in soft tans, grays and browns, as well as the inevitable black or blue or white, will be much seen.

The serges for 1911 are exceptionally soft and pliable, leading themselves well to the intricate cutting of the year's fashions.

The shepherd plaid worsteds will also be used for smart tailored suits, while in chevrons come many of the novelties of the year.

These include "cut breaks" in weave and spiral knot effects with vivid splashes of color throughout the goods.

Old Letter of Kaiser Wilhelm

Missle He Wrote When a Boy Is Brought to Light.

BERLIN. (Special).—An interesting letter written by Emperor William at Versailles, has just seen the light of print. It runs as follows:

"My dear Colonel—On my birthday I got many nice things, but the ones of all the presents is the battery shot which you have presented to me. This mighty shell is a terrible thing indeed, and what damage it must do when it is whole, and when it comes whistling through the air and falls to the ground and bursts!

"And it must make an awful noise! I got a very great fright when I saw this shell, and I was filled with horror when I said to myself that these sugar-loaves are shot and thrown at our dear regiment and at our dear brave fellow countrymen. But, thank God! this happens no longer.

"For three weeks a truce has been arranged and it is to be hoped there will be no more fighting. Then you will come back to us crowned with glory.

"How delighted I shall be to welcome you all again! When I heard of St. Privat and Le Bourget, and still of Le Bourget, I should, in spite of a great fright, gladly have been grown up in order to have been there. In fact, I should have liked to be with the regiment everywhere.

"It is a great comfort to me, to know that no more of you are being shot dead. I thank you many times and times for your kindness in thinking of me, and sending me this souvenir of this difficult time, through Count Finkenstein and the sergeant-major. Good health to you, Colonel, may God protect and further guide you and the regiment!

"Please thank your officers for the attention they have shown me. My mamma sends her kindest regards—Yours very truly, (signed) Wilhelm, Prince of Prussia, Second Lieutenant in First Foot Guards."

CHARMING BLOUSES FOR SPRING DAYS

Blouses are a necessity at any time of the year, and although those shown for the winter outfit were lovely, the display for spring is fascinating almost beyond belief.

The sleeves in many are three-quarter length with the kimono effect at the top. Some charming creations in Madeira hand embroidery, entirely hand made, are trimmed with Irish and chun and cost $20.

Exquisite hand embroidery and insertions of real lace make the more expensive blouses really works of art, while the plainer variety in wash silk and fine handkerchief linen are dainty and pleasing enough in their way.

One smart little blouse of rather heavy white Japanese silk was cut in peasant fashion, the sleeves and blouse being one.

Beginning at the front of the blouse, it was tucked across the front in half-inch tucks, which extended all the way down to the cuff of the three-quarter length sleeve. Three crocheted buttons finished the small shaped cuffs. The blouse was cut to a slight point at the neck, and finished with a small sailor collar.

NEW HATS AND COATS

New Models Are Already
Appearing in the Shops.

While the very latest cry of spring fashions has not been heard, one cannot go far wrong in guessing as to what they will be.

Certainly the shops have assumed an air of lightness which the showing of summer frocks and hats is bound to give, although for the most part these frocks are for the between-season which the more fortunate of us use for the southern trip.

Again we see the hip length straight cut coat and the narrow but comfortable skirt.

These are but the winter styles carried out with slight modification in thinner materials. Braid, too, will play an important part in the trimming of many of these thin suits.

This is well illustrated in one of the entire collar is made of very wide black braid combined with braid which is composed in part of white.

This collar shows the popular sailor effect, which is to be seen in many variations during the coming season. Most of the coats, short and long, fasten on one side with three or four large, fancy buttons, and in the more costly coats these buttons are in some cases made of solid silver.

The long coat seems almost out of place among the springlike models, but it is not to be despised on a cool spring evening.

The fitted coat of faun-colored broadcloth, with its immense double shawl collar and empire back, is one of the handsomest models, buttoning on one side with three immense filigree buttons. The thin satin lining comes only to the waist line.

Very pretty are the hats shown, and, as is usual, the flower hat occupies a prominent place.

Sweetbreads a la Newburg, in Ramekins

Parboil one pair of sweetbreads by simmering three-quarters of an hour in salted water with two bay leaves. Drain, cool rapidly, remove membranes and with a silver knife cut into small dice. Chop very fine half a cup of cooked mushrooms. In a double boiler heat a cup of rich cream and add the sweetbreads and mushrooms. Beat three egg yolks with a saltspoon of salt and a dash of paprika, add two tablespoons of lemon juice and one tablespoon Worcester-shire, and stir into the cream, continuing to stir until somewhat thickened. Put into heated ramekins and serve very hot.

Grape Sugar.

Skin and seed one pound of Malaga or Tokay grapes, and then fill them with hazel nuts. The carrels of one grapefruit should be mixed with the grapes, and the juice of the grapefruit should be used instead of vinegar or lemon in the mayonnaise. A juicy ripe grapefruit will yield enough for dressing and not injure the flavor of the pulp. Serve on white lettuce with cheese crescents.

Grand Junction, Colorado (Spl).— "There is no need going after the divorce evil of today. The trouble is before divorce; it is in the courtship. "If you had enough family slippers in the house you wouldn't need a curfew law.

"American lodge life is wrecking American home life.

"The husband is the head of the family—even in Colorado—and God never intended him to be a wooden head."

These are a few of the maxims of Rev. T. Martin, evangelist, who is holding services here which are causing much comment. Other things he said were:

"Give me the money that now goes to the secret societies and I will support every orphan and widow in America and be a multi-millionaire in 10 years."
